(Special By Scripps-McLae.)
Chicago, Nov. 10.—The general opinion is that the switchmen who voted Sunday to stick to the demand for twenty per cent. increase will compel a strike before the matter is settled.

Making Arrangements
Several roads in anticipation of a strike have made arrangements with a new organization known as the Switchmen's Union of North America to supply them with men. The switchmen in the yards here say that they will stick to their demands and call on all organized labor to help them.

Awful Consequences
Should this threat be fulfilled and labor go out, one of the worst if not the worst strike in history will take place. The loss will be incalculable to business at large.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 10.—Governor Yates fever went as low as 100° Sunday and at no time was higher than 102° 25. This is the lowest temperature that has been registered since the Governor's illness. Mrs. Yates was sufficiently improved to be about the mansion, but did not resume her watch at the bedside. The present week is expected to be the critical one, and Dr. Taylor is of the opinion that the executive will be well on the road to recovery in two weeks. Dr. Taylor said that Governor Yates was more rational than he has been for many days. As an evidence of this the patient asked to know if he would be sufficiently recovered in a month to resume his executive duties. Dr. Taylor will recommend a trip South to recuperate as soon as the patient is sufficiently strong to stand the travel. Up to this time Governor Yates has lost considerable flesh.

GIVE HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL

TRINITY CHURCH CELEBRATES GATHERING IN OF CROPS.

REV. RICHEY GIVES ADDRESS

Music and Decorations in Accord with Spirit of Festival—Harvest Home Time of Thanksgiving.

Trinity church held its annual Harvest Home festival Sunday morning. Scripture, song, and discourse were all relevant to the topic, and the church itself was bedecked with the fruits of the field in tone with the occasion. Sheaves of wheat, rye and barley, surmounted by smaller grasses and herbs, were ranged in a barrier across the front of the auditorium. Sprigs of grasses wreathed the pulpit.

All of the music was chosen with view to its fitness upon that occasion and included as the Introit, "Harvest Home," followed by Cruikshank's "Kyrie." The other numbers by the surprised choir were the anthem, "O Lord, How Manifold," by Barnaby, and "Tours," "Sanctus," "Benedictus," and "Agnus Dei," closing with Cruikshank's "Gloria," all of which gave evidence of careful and painstaking preparation.

Rev. J. A. M. Richey chose a double text, both portions of which bore reference to the harvest time. He opened his address by commenting upon the divineness of life. God first appointed man, upon whom the gift of life had been bestowed, to tend the field. It is ever the most fitting occupation of man that he be occupied in the care or interest of those things which contain the vital element, of those things which are from on high.

Various mechanical devices, in themselves useless, and in cases with no great aim, through the work of men, have become imbued with that power which accomplishes wonders. It is in reality only a material application of the gift with which God endowed man. But man is too often tempted to believe that he is the creator, and forgets that were it not for the Lord his life would go out in an instant, like a snuffed candle.

Ideal Condition in Eden
It was in Eden that nearly the ideal state of affairs was attained, when man lived simply and without selfishness on and among the living gifts of Jehovah. And repeatedly in the earlier portions of the Scriptures incidents are given which indicate the high esteem in which the Lord held those gifts of man to him, which were of the produce of the field.

It is impossible to forget the harvest season. But it is wrong to allow the fields to be filled with corn, and gathered in plenteousness into the barns and granaries, and give no sign of gratitude. Rejoice, for the Lord has given these blessings to the world, and been gracious.

Harvest of Souls
In another field it is wrong to neglect the harvest. There are souls all around which should be gathered into the harvest at the right time. It is easy sometimes to forget and take garlic in the hand instead of wheat, and to sow tares instead of corn. Every man who does deeds of kindness and is interested in his fellows is a sower of good seed.

If there is much seed wisely sown, how blessed must be the harvest. In this church, the pastor said, there should be much seed sown in preparation for the mission which is soon to begin. At that time a plentiful harvest is hoped for.

Men Are Lost
There are many souls which wither and die. They are lost because of the lack of proper care. Those who could have provided the kindly sunshine, and the refreshing water at the right time, failed to be alive to their responsibility, or to see their duty.

"Cast thy bread upon the waters and it shall not return empty." But it may be remembered with thankfulness that although we may not see the fruits of our labors during our lifetime, our responsibility does not include that. All that we must account for is the labor, and if the results are not attained, no blame is attached to us by the divine father who makes the final reckoning. It is the amount of the service and not the measure of return for which we are held, and for which the divine injunction is given us to labor. We shall surely know that we have not served in vain, if at last we shall be gathered into the garner of Christ.

Three Harvests
There is a harvest of Christ as well as of the field and of the individual. It is well worth while to consider with care and in a prayerful spirit, what Christ did to sow his field. His field embraced nothing short of the entire world. His toil, his suffering, and his devotion to an unappreciative world, which at last turned upon him, and crucified him, comprised the sowing which he must needs do before the harvest came. He that sitteth upon a cloud shall at the last thrust down his sickle and gather in the harvest.

BELOIT MAN WAS SLIGHTLY INJURED

He Missed His Footing While Trying to Catch a Ride Home.

The patrol wagon was called out Sunday morning about three o'clock to answer an ambulance call at the Gold street railroad crossing. A young man named Crowley residing in Beloit in attempting to board an outgoing train slipped and fell. It was thought at first that his foot had been smashed but it developed that it was nothing more than a strain. He was taken to Dr. Joe Whiting's office and later was able to leave for home.

NEW DIRECTORY IS A HANDSOME BOOK

Valuable Information Given in Attractive Form—Smith Family Is Most Numerous.

Janesville's new city directory has been completed and is ready for distribution among the subscribers. It is an attractive book as well as valuable for the accurate information it contains, being handsomely bound in red vellum. The cover is said to be the handsomest ever put on a directory in any city and it certainly is very satisfactory from an artistic standpoint. No advertisements appear on the front cover. It simply bears the words "Janesville City Directory, 1902," printed in black.

Information of Value
The book is very comprehensive, comprising a complete list, alphabetically arranged, of business firms and private citizens, prefaced by a compendium of general information. This compendium contains a list of the state county, and city officers and committees, the city public schools and their teachers, charitable institutions, banks, convents, hospitals, cemeteries, churches and other public buildings, labor unions, fraternal and benevolent societies, miscellaneous societies, newspapers, fish and game laws, parks and a directory of the streets, alphabetically arranged.

The larger part of the directory is devoted to the list of citizens and business firms, and many of the latter are also represented in the attractive advertisements which are scattered through the book.

Some interesting facts are revealed by the list of names. The Smiths are most numerous, as might naturally be expected, but there are fourteen family names which are represented by numbers exceeding twenty. According to the directory the Smith family ranks first with 69 names and the Browns come next with 45 while the Clarks are a close third, numbering 40.

Other Popular Names
The Ryans are fourth with 35 and then the list drops down into the twenties. There are 27 of the Williams family, 26 Johnsons, 25 people bearing the name of Jones and the same number who belong to the Murphy family. The McCartys and Joyce families number 24 each; Lee, 23; Miller, 22; Anderson, 21 and Wood, 20.

Edgar D. Bullock, of Beloit, the publisher of the book has had considerable experience in directory work, having published five directories for the city of Beloit and being now engaged in compiling one for Belvidere. His experience and careful methods have enabled him to give the city a directory which is complete, reliable and as accurate as it is possible for a directory to be.

Excellent Workmanship
Mechanically the book is the product of the printing department of the Gazette Printing company and of the book bindery of W. E. Clinton & Co. The workmanship is first class in every particular and the book will stand on its own merits.

BARELY ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY

S. Hutchinson Has a Narrow Escape in an Accident on Saturday.

S. Hutchinson had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday while driving across Milwaukee street bridge. He was thrown from his buggy when the front of Connell's sign store by a collision with the Myers house car and landed directly under the horse's feet. C. J. McGinley, who was standing near him from his perilous position and he escaped with a few scratches and bruises.

DOMESTIC LIFE WAS THE CAUSE

Tift, Who Died on Friday, Is Said to Have Left a Letter.

From letters left behind by D. Tift it is evident that domestic troubles caused him to take his life. He evidently stood everything for the sake of his children and when his wife left and took the children he thought that there was nothing more to live for.

There is little doubt but that Tift was mentally deranged over the separation and brooding over the affair caused him to take his own life.

America Versus the World
(Andrew Carnegie in The World's Work.)

The causes which have already changed the positions of Britain and America as industrial powers, America now makes more steel than all the rest of the world. In iron and coal her production is the greatest, as it is in textiles—cotton, wool and silk. She produces three-fourths of the cotton grown in the world. The value of her manufactures is just about three times that of your own; her exports are greater. The Clearing House exchanges of New York are almost double those of London in amount. She furnishes you with most of the necessary food products you import. She has two-fifths of the railway mileage of the world. Thus she has become the foremost nation in wealth, manufactures and commerce, and promises soon, in some branches, to occupy the position which Britain occupied when it was Britain versus the world. She already does this with steel. Although no Britain can be expected to see with satisfaction his country displaced from first place, there is yet cause for rejoicing that supremacy remains in the family. It is not altogether lost what the race still holds. Macbeth's fate is not Britain's. The scepter of material supremacy has been wrenched by no unequal hand.

It is her eldest son, her rightful heir, who wears the crown, and he can never forget, nor cease to be proud of, the mother to whom he owes so much.

MANAGEMENT IS HELD RESPONSIBLE

For Collapse of Bleachers at the Wisconsin-Michigan Football Game in Chicago.

Managers of the football game at Marshall field a week ago were censured by the coroner's jury Saturday for the collapse of a section of seats which resulted in the death of Frederick Carlton and in injuries to two score of spectators.

It was held by the jury that the managers had not taken proper precautions in the erection of the stands and had failed to have them inspected properly before the game.

The censure was part of the verdict at the inquest, which found that Carlton, who was fourteen years old, and who lived at 4923 Greenwood avenue, came to his death through the injuries received by the collapse.

During the hearing the blame for accident was shifted back and forth by the police, and building department and the management of the Universities of Chicago, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Following is the verdict of the jury: We, the jury, find that Frederick Carlton came to his death through shock and injuries sustained in a football game held Nov. 1 on Marshall field, and we find that proper precautions on the part of the management were omitted in their failure to have the seats properly constructed and inspected in ample time before the game.

MUSICAL FEAST IS GREATLY ENJOYED

Famous Banda Rossa Gives Four Concerts Before Small But Appreciative Audiences.

Rarely has a company of musicians visited this city which ranked so indubitably among the great organizations of the world of music as the Banda Rossa. Janesville has had the honor of being particularly fortunate in the presence of the Italian "Red Band." If only for a single hurried matinee. It surely does not speak creditably for the music lovers of the city that four programs, matinees on Saturday and Sunday, and full concerts on both evenings, attracted hardly enough persons to half fill the house on one occasion.

Granting only that the Banda Rossa is a famous organization, and not denying that it may have deteriorated since its first American appearance, its name would seem sufficient to fill the opera house from peak to peak. Perhaps never has a band been accorded such widespread and enthusiastic recognition as was from the very outset given by press and public to Sorrentino and his men, and the unique place which they occupy might alone be considered enough to attract a throng of curiosity seekers. But, no. Manager Myers may bill the highest grade of attractions, and high grade attractions do not consent to play in a city for the mere love of playing—and take every pains to keep the standard at city level, but the public still stays away from the theater. It does not seem strange that those that attended the Saturday and Sunday performances were indignant that the Banda Rossa should be so wretchedly patronized.

It is impossible to make any comparisons between the Banda Rossa and other musical organizations. It is unlike them all. In instrumentation, it stands alone. The trumpets which take the place of the cornets of the American military band give a warmth of color and a blaring vigor to the band, which thrills and arouses, even against the will of the listener. But the valve trombones to which Signor Sorrentino still adheres, do not meet with as great success with an American audience. Their limitations are too manifest, in a message requiring delicate phrasing or a ringing burst of sound. The baritone, too, reveals the same inflexible adherence to a single colorless tone quality.

With these possible exceptions the personnel of the Banda Rossa is almost beyond criticism. Signor di Nardi displayed exquisite skill in his interpretation of the solo oboe passages. Signor Bottega played the trumpet solos with a nicety of shading contrasted with soul-inspiring fortissimos which were in their most powerful tones free from any objectionable brassiness.

Sorrentino handles the baton over his men with a happy combination of scholarly precision and passionate abandon. It is in the vivacious contrasted colors, the blares of brass and clash of cymbals and drums set off against an exquisitely graceful cantabile melody that he excels. His extreme effects are startling but without them there would be no Banda Rossa.

In the numbers selected for the four programs the classical and popular were happily commingled. On Sunday several favorite sacred numbers were introduced, although in those the band was unable to display its greatest power. Signor Sorrentino seems to have a special fondness for the American national airs, or else he is wise enough to cater to his audiences, for he introduces several in every concert, and under his leadership they are magnificently played.

Lost Indian City Located
The site of the lost Indian city, Mascoutens, which was reported as having 20,000 inhabitants in 1675, has been determined by the labors of Thomas Clithero of Portage, Wis., now extended over many years. It was the largest city in all Indian history, so far as United States territory is concerned, and the description of the results in the course of the seventeenth century, closing with Marquette and Joliet in 1673, are said to have been verified.

JANESVILLE WINS FROM BEAVER DAM

WAYLAND ACADEMY DEFEATED BY 11 TO 0.

LOCALS PLAY EXCELLENT GAME

Home Team Displayed Championship Form Against the Heavier Visitors from Beaver Dam.

Janesville high school whitewashed Wayland academy on the gridiron at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon. The game was won handily, by a score of 11 to 0, in as pretty an exhibition of fast, heady high school football as anyone could wish to see. Janesville people did not seem to realize that the boys are putting up a game that is worthy of a crowd field at every home date. Instead of a heavy gallery on the side lines, about two hundred and fifty high school students and a scattering of small boys who had come in under the fence, were the only rooting support given the team.

This is the first team that the high school has sent out for several years, and its success this year will doubtless have a great influence on next year's faculty ruling. If the boys were playing a graceful game, with the "dirty work" that characterizes too many schools, such apathy on the part of the citizens would be justifiable, but as it is the eleven have good reason to feel dissatisfied with the numbers that their contests have been attracting.

Good Head Work.
From the kick-off both teams played good ball, but the home eleven clearly had the best of it. It was rarely that the men from Beaver Dam made their distance, while the locals as rarely failed. The backs especially deserved high praise. An entire team made up of the same quality of stuff would place Janesville easily in the running for state championship honors. The men usually play low, and always fast and hard, following their interference like veterans, and picking their openings headily.

Wayland played raggedly, with a slow and incomplete interference. Often their runners, especially Aller and Sanderson, both of whom showed good form, tore over the opposing line and through the opposing line, for their distance or more. It is needless to say that the score was a surprise party to almost everyone and especially so to the visitors who had come there cocksure of the result. Either they had taken a declared snipe for the game or else Janesville is superior to most of the high school teams of the state.

Casey Bucked Line.
Early in the first half Janesville scored. Casey punctured the Wayland line for a four yard gain, and deposited the ball on the safe side of the boundary. Casey's line bucks were a feature of the game, and when the impact came, the shock could be heard on the side lines. Palmer failed a difficult goal and the score stood five to nothing in Janesville's favor.

A few moments after the first score, Aller suddenly emerged from a confused heap of legs and arms, and raced down toward the Janesville goal. Pursuit was useless, and he planted the pigskin squarely between the posts. For a few happy moments the visitors went wild. They hugged each other, and almost wept with joy. Their spontaneous congratulations were rudely interrupted by the voice of the referee calling the ball back. Aller and snatched it from the arms of a Janesville man after it had been downed. The half was called without any further gains.

Substitutes Put In.
Shortly after, McCoy was taken out of the game, Aller was transferred from full to half, and Goldin went in with a game knee to play the full back position.

In the second half by another series of brilliant plays, in which the backs figured strongly, aided by a solid line, the ball was pushed down to within a few yards of the end of the field, and again Casey went over for a touch down. Flaherty punted out prettily, and Palmer heeled the kick. Palmer kicked goal. Score, Janesville 11; Wayland 0.

Wayland Awakes
As soon as the second touchdown had been made by Janesville, the visitors decided that it was time to play ball. If ever, Sutherland kicked off, and passing the Janesville man, who should have stopped it, the ball rolled to the nine yard line where it was downed. Flaherty attempted to kick out safe, and fluked, the ball going straight up in the air, and coming down with no gain.

Again Flaherty kicked and the ball went out out of bounds, making barely the distance. A third trial resulted as disastrously as the first and Wayland took the ball. On the first down they were held, and then Aller tried at a goal from the twenty yard line. Wayland's line held, but the kick went astray, and Flaherty punted the ball out. Aller caught it and advanced several yards. Goldin fumbled a kick, although in general he far outplayed his opponent and Janesville took the ball. Galbraith, Millmore, Casey and Flaherty were successively used for good gains through the line and around the ends and time was called with the pigskin in Wayland's territory.

MAY BE MARRIED ONCE TOO MUCH

Investigation as to the Domestic Affairs of a Milton Man Has Begun.

Mrs. David J. Booher, of Milton Junction, has been at Rockford investigating the marriage of David J. Booher to Rose Johnson on July 9. Mrs. Booher was married to Booher at Whitewater, Wis., Aug. 17, 1898. She was then the divorced widow of Harry J. Bodman. She has not lived with Booher, for some time and has been working at the Morgan house, Milton Junction. She noticed the account of Booher's marriage at Rockford and found on investigation that the man that she supposed was her husband was living with another woman as her husband.

District Attorney Jackson has had the matter under consideration for some time, but was trying to find some way of prosecuting Booher in Wisconsin before having him arrested. It has not yet been decided definitely what will be done in the matter.

A Bad Man From New England
David Mather, a Connecticut Yankee, was one of the Dodge City "bad men." He once remarked, "These killers are all murderers. All of 'em look for the best of it. If I made up my mind that I had to kill a man, I'd rather find him asleep than any other way." When he was deputy marshal at Los Vegas, a man stepped up to him, put a pistol to his face, and said, "You're the fellow who goes around here killing people. I'll just fix you right now." Mather threw his hands before him and backed off. "No, no," said he, "you are mistaken. I am your friend. I'm no killer. I'm peaceable. I'm your friend. I'm your friend." The puzzled avenger hesitated and dropped his gun-hand by his side. As Mather showed his pistol back in the holster, he glanced at the corpse and remarked, "Now don't make any more mistakes." Somebody told him one day to look out, that Bat Masterson would kill him. Sometimes he stuttered slightly. He said, "No, I may kill him. He will shove his gun in my stomach and orate. I'll turn 'round, put my hand in the middle of my back, and say, 'You shoot me right there; you can do it.' He will drop his hand by his side, and then he'll c-climb the golden stairs."—E. C. Little in Everybody's Magazine.

Dislocated Innominate
Case No. 1—Lady 21 years of age; lame since she was eleven years old; fell on a pile of telegraph poles and hurt her right limb, from which she had never recovered. I examined the case, pointed out the trouble and told her I thought I could cure her. She had taken five months' treatment from a "gold brick" osteopath. A friend of mine told her she had been imposed upon, that the one whom she patronized was from a school who sold diplomas, and recommended her to try a graduate from a reputable school. After an investigation she concluded she had not been treated by an osteopath, and in November last began treatment. On April 19th she returned home entirely cured, with the brace and crutches in a box. She gained twenty-five pounds during the winter.

It has been our intention to give a fall opening, but owing to the vast amount of work necessary to get our great fall and winter stock into shape, for ready selling, rush of business etc., we could not get to it earlier—However, not disparaging, although a little late, we have reserved two... days, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 12th and 13th, for a Formal Opening, and the store will be trimmed throughout, up stairs, and down for the occasion. It will afford the great public an excellent opportunity to see the store at its best, and also form an idea of the immensity of the stock, its wonderful completeness. We want everybody to feel free to come. In every city there is a certain proportion of the people who patronize stores in large cities through their catalogues, or visit the stores in person, without trying to find out whether articles can be obtained in the home stores. To such people we extend a special invitation to call and compare notes. EVANGELIST AT BAPTIST CHURCH

CHARLES N. HUNT BEGINS HIS SPECIAL SERVICES

ASSISTED BY ROSCOE KING

Mr. Hunt is a Logical Speaker Who Commands Attention—His Introductory Sermon.

With yesterday's services at the Baptist church there began a series of evangelistic meetings which are to continue for two weeks, services being held every night during the week, except Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock and Bible readings every afternoon.

The sessions are to be conducted by Charles N. Hunt, of Minneapolis, the lawyer evangelist, assisted by Roscoe King, of Chicago, gospel singer and violinist. Mr. Hunt has just returned from Europe and came directly to this city. The steamer on which he made the ocean journey was delayed and he feared that he would not be able to reach Janesville in time for the first services of the series.

Large Audiences
Two immense congregations heard with pleasure Mr. Hunt's practical, helpful sermons and Mr. King's singing yesterday. At the morning service Mr. Hunt took for his subject "The Lawyer's View of Salvation" and in the evening he spoke on the question, "What Think Ye of Christ?" Mr. King sang solos both morning and evening. He has a rich and powerful baritone voice which he uses with pleasing effect.

An Earnest Speaker
No one need attend the meetings at the Baptist church with the expectation of hearing a sensational speaker or an extremist. Mr. Hunt is a forceful, logical speaker. His style is simple and earnest and carries conviction. The doctrine he preaches is broad and attractive and the things which he says furnish food for sober reflection and careful thought. It is safe to predict that he will at least make his hearers think even after they are beyond the reach of his voice. This is true because what he says appeals directly to the reason rather than to the emotions.

Introductory Remarks
Prefacing his introductory sermon yesterday morning Mr. Hunt bespoke the help of the church in his work saying that much depended on the individual effort put forth, especially by believers. They understood that they were not to expect anything learned from him in a theological way. He was in no sense a theologian and had not been educated or trained for the ministry. His calling had been the law. The work they were to do together was to present Christ to the indifferent, the careless and the sinful that they would see the beauty and usefulness of the Christian life. He asked the people to come in the spirit of prayer, desiring to help rather than to help.

A Logical Discourse
For the able sermon which followed, Mr. Hunt chose the following words from the second chapter of Hebrews: "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

No person on earth can determine how truly great is the salvation of Jesus Christ. There is something to be saved from, to be saved to and to be saved for. The idea that salvation saves from hell, or the punishment of sin, is crude, narrow and unworthy. Punishment is not God's plan or purpose. Jesus Christ came to the world to save, not to condemn or judge. While his salvation includes salvation from punishment, known as hell, that is its least possible feature.

Heaven Begins Here
The idea that men are merely saved for heaven is almost as crude. Salvation includes the divine inheritance but it is not altogether for the hereafter. The general idea of heaven is of something beyond the grave, a state or condition into which people enter when they are done with this life. This is no doubt Scripture. God owns both position and power, but it was not the purpose of the speaker to thrill the heart of his hearers with the glories of heaven.

People have to do with present, practical things, to deal with great problems now. All who want to live the best they can need salvation now and salvation for the present includes salvation from sin and the penalty of sin. It includes the heaven beyond the grave and the heaven here and now. No one is what he ought to be but all can be better.

Neglect Is A Sin
"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" The doctrine of jurisprudence is the doctrine of neglect. The salvation which God offers through Jesus Christ is a great salvation and ought not to be neglected. The great sin today is not so much positive evil, intemperance, corruption, profanity and the grosser evils but indifference and apathy.

God deals fairly with his children. The salvation from the penalty of sin is not a great salvation. The murderer, pardoned by an earthly judge may still be a murderer at heart. God's greater salvation saves from the penalty and the state of sin and also from the power of sin. God's salvation touches the inside and the outside and it is needed in the homes, in business and in political life.

Christian Life Is Best
God offers his great salvation. He wants it at once. They are concerned in the life that now is. Many people but to simply receive it. God will older as if the best things in this life are not to be found in Christ. Many think salvation can be bought. God has provided a way to give it to his people.

lived on earth. He met all things and conquered, outliving the life that all may live. He could not save himself because he had given his life to the salvation of others.

Salvation is Free
God offers his great salvation. People are not to neglect or ignore it, but to simply receive it. God will reveal the way and make glorious which will bless the life of usefulness which will bless the individual and all who come in contact with him. The salvation will save from selfishness, which is the deepest root of all sin. One has no power to help others until God has helped him. Regeneration must first come to the individual. Many people are neglecting God's salvation when they ought to be receiving it.

"gadzoos," and "zounds" and fighting duels upon the slightest provocation, our theater goes with pleasure to Tim Murphy's revival of "Old Innocence." The story of the play is so real and Mr. Murphy's acting so natural that the audience feel as if it were a glimpse into the home life of some dear friend or neighbor. A noted western divine who witnessed the performance said, "I could preach a sermon in words as beautifully as Mr. Murphy does by his acting in 'Old Innocence,' my church would not hold the crowd that would flock to hear me." Mr. Murphy's appearance in this city will be at the Myers Grand on next Thursday night.

Spellbinder in Modern Politics
The "spellbinder" made his appearance coincidentally with the "dude." In the early eighties. At least the names arose at about the same time. The two types of men have existed since the first spellbinder pursued his brother troglodytes to form the first tribal government and the first dude distinguished himself from his fellows by scraping the sea-nud from his hairy limbs before gulping down the mollusks whose high heaped shells were to be the kitchen middens of the archaologist.

The young republicans who went forth converted to democracy in the Blaine campaign, and with the zeal of new converts held their audiences "spellbound" as they wove chapters of rhetorical flowers about the head of the democratic candidate, were the first spellbinders, I think, to wear the title. It was swiftly adopted, however, indiscriminately for all political speakers.

The spellbinders of 1894, rightly or wrongly, at least left their party for conscience's sake and gave their services to their cause. Even today a majority of political speakers are also luteally unpaid. Of course, one hears stories of fees of $10,000 paid to a noted democrat for campaign services against Mr. Bryan in 1896, and of fees $300 a night paid to a noted Independent who opposed Mr. Harrison. In addition, however, to congressmen and senators, and state and local office holders who gave their services, there are hundreds of speakers of various political faiths, who neither hold or expect to hold public office, who would regard the offer of payment for a political speech as an insult.

Nevertheless, the spellbinder must get what comfort he can from the triumph of his cause, for the world will not credit him with disinterestedness, and his best friends (out of politics) think him hired.

The orator of an earlier generation has had his day. The modern spellbinder, like the man of business, the soldier, the Salvation Army evangelist, concerns himself more with results than with conventional methods, with matter rather than form.—From "The Spellbinder," by Col. Curtis Guild, Jr., in the November Scribner's.

A Noble Oak
Mr. J. Horace McFarland, who is writing a series of what may be called "true biographies" for The Outlook (each having beautiful photographs of fine type-specimens) thus discourses on the oak:

The one thoroughly characteristic is surely the noble white oak, a tree most admirable in every way, and most widely distributed over the Northern states. Its majestic form, as it towers high above the ordinary works of man, conveys the repose of conscious strength to the beholder. There is a great oak in Connecticut to which I make pilgrimages, and from which I always get a message of rest and peace. There it stands, strong, full-powered, minding little the most great size; but its impression grows as one looks at it, until it fills the whole landscape. I have sat under it in spring, when yet its leafy canopy was incomplete; I have looked into its green depths in midsummer, when its grateful shadow refreshed the highway; I have seen the sun set in redness beyond its bare limbs, the sunny countryside emphasizing its mystery lines; I have tried to fathom the mystery in its sturdy heart overhead when the full moon rose in the sky; and always that "great oak of Glasstonbury" has soothed and cheered, and rested, and taken one nearer the giver of all such good to restless humanity.

Do I wonder at my friend who has built his home where he may look always at this white oak, or that he raged in anger when a crabbed neighbor ruthlessly cut down a superb tree of the same kind that was on his property line, in order that he might run his barbed-wire fence straight? No; I agree with him that this tree murderer has probably a barbed-wire heart, and we expect that his future existence will be treeless at least.

NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The stomach is the vital center of the body. It is the organ from which all other organs are fed. A weak stomach means a weak man. There never was a strong man with a weak stomach. What is called "weak stomach" is in general a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, which prevents the proper digestion of the food which is taken into the stomach, and so reduces the nutrition of the body. When all food is taken away the body starves. When the food eaten is only digested and assimilated in part it only nourishes the body in part, and so the body is partly starved. And this starvation is felt in every organ of the body dependent on the blood which is made from food.

The great variety of the cures performed by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due to its remarkable power to heal diseases of the stomach and allied organs. It cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote, but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. "Weak" heart, lungs, kidneys and weakness of other organs is cured with the cure of the weak stomach.

Mr. Thomas A. Swartz, Box 103, Sub-Station C, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up all hope, thinking that I could not be cured. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) lbs. in about six weeks. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy today, I think, as I ever was."

NEED OF TOLERANCE

Let us not seek to fit the whole world with shoes from our individual last. If we think that all music ceased to be written when Wagner laid down his pen, let us not condemn those who find enjoyment in light opera. Perhaps they may sometimes rise to our heights of artistic appreciation and learn the proper parts to applaud. If their lighter music satisfies their souls, is our Wagner doing more for us? It is not fair to take from a child its rag doll in order to raise it to the appreciation of the Venus de Milo. The rag doll is its friend. It may require long series of increasingly better dolls to lead it to realize the beauties of the marble woman of Melos.

Intolerance makes its great mistakes in measuring the needs of others from its own standpoint. Intolerance ignores the personal equation of life. What would be an excellent book for a man of forty might be worse than useless for a boy of thirteen. The line of activity in life which we would choose as our highest dream of bliss, might, if forced on another, be to him worse than the after-death fate to the wicked, according to the old fashioned theologians. What would be a very acceptable breakfast for a sparrow would be a very poor meal for an elephant.

When we sit in solemn judgment of the acts and characters of those around us and condemn them with the easy nonchalance of our ignorance, yet with the assumption of omniscience we reveal our intolerance. Tolerance ever leads us to recognize and respect the differences in the natures of those who are near to us, to make allowance for differences in training, in opportunities, in ideals, in motives, in tastes, in opinions, in temperaments and in feelings. Intolerance seeks to live other people's lives for them; sympathy helps us to live their lives with them. We must accept humanity with all its weakness, sin, and folly and seek to make the best of it, just as humanity must accept us. We learn this lesson as we grow older, and with the increase of our knowledge of the world, we see how much happier life would have been for us and for others if we had been more tolerant, more charitable, more generous.—(William George Jordan in "The Power of Truth," published by Brentano's.)

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AND CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

The death at White Plains of a girl seven years of age from malignant diphtheria, after so-called treatment by a Christian Science healer who refused to allow the use of anti-toxin, which physicians now regard as a reasonably sure remedy, has led to an indictment of the parents and the Christian Science healer, under the following clause of the criminal code of New York State:

A person who willfully omits, without lawful excuse, to perform a duty by law imposed upon him to furnish food, clothing, shelter, or medical attendance to a minor or to make such payment toward its maintenance as may have been required by the order of a court or a magistrate when such minor has been committed to an institution... is guilty of a misdemeanor.

It would not be legitimate for The Outlook to prejudice this case, and upon the specific question whether the parents and the healer have been guilty of the offense charged we express no opinion. But the case involves a general principle on which the public have a right and a duty to form a clear and enforceable judgment. How far have the parents the right to determine the treatment of their offspring under circumstances which may involve death? The question is large, complicated and a difficult one. The Outlook, however, has no doubt that the community has a right and a duty to protect children from the consequences of a neglectful parent; their parents of what the best medical opinion of the age regards as a necessary precaution against disease; certainly it may determine by law what action shall be taken in the case of contagious diseases for the general protection of the community, and no theory of medicine and no profession of religious faith can exempt the individual from the duty of obeying the law which is enacted under such circumstances and for such a purpose. The same principles which give a community the right to require vaccination to prevent smallpox, or scientific drainage to prevent malaria, give it a right to prevent what the community regards as neglect in those cases in which neglected disease in one household may be the means of communicating disease and death to others.—The Outlook.

FAMILIARITY WITH DANGER

The destruction of St. Pierre on the island of Martinique last May, startled the world, because of the great loss of life, but other eruptions of greater magnitude have followed with out exciting special interest. The people of the ill fated island have been warned by a scientific commission, but many of them are unable to leave.

The latest disturbance occurred last month when 2,000 lives were destroyed, and a large territory demolished. Fears are entertained that the Windward Chain of Islands will be visited by a tidal wave, which would result in great loss of life in all the coast cities.

Familiarity with danger is so common, that it is not at all surprising that the natives of this ill-fated district cling to their homes with tenacity. The government of France should take the matter in hand, and provide for these unfortunate people before further disaster overtakes them.

It is definitely settled that the next lower house of congress will have a clear majority of fourteen. Not large, but large enough to control legislation. The majority will be increased in 1904.

The Disciples of Christ, a religious denomination one million strong, assembled in annual conference at Omaha two weeks ago, and 10,000 communicants partook of the Lord's supper in a single tabernacle. It advocates the union of all religious denominations, and the disciples are enthusiastic in home and foreign mission work.

The stalwart campaign was begun in mid-winter, 1901, by the purchase of the Milwaukee Sentinel, which cost a half million dollars. It has cost in cold cash, to run its newspaper, support its "league," to subsidize the country republican press, and to defeat the governor before and after his nomination, on a moderate estimate one thousand dollars a day. It has dragged two United States senators and the postmaster general in its dirty wake, and it has secured just one triumph. The Sentinel exploited it at the top of its middle column of its first page yesterday morning; the defeat of Game Warden Matt Christianson, republican candidate for sheriff of Price county.—Milwaukee Free Press.

Conciliatory.

The stalwart campaign was begun in mid-winter, 1901, by the purchase of the Milwaukee Sentinel, which cost a half million dollars. It has cost in cold cash, to run its newspaper, support its "league," to subsidize the country republican press, and to defeat the governor before and after his nomination, on a moderate estimate one thousand dollars a day. It has dragged two United States senators and the postmaster general in its dirty wake, and it has secured just one triumph. The Sentinel exploited it at the top of its middle column of its first page yesterday morning; the defeat of Game Warden Matt Christianson, republican candidate for sheriff of Price county.—Milwaukee Free Press.

IN THE VALLEY OF THE SHADOW

Rev. J. T. Henderson officiated yesterday afternoon at the funeral services over the remains of Daniel R. Tift.

The funeral was held at the home, on Sharon street, at two o'clock. Both the Modern Woodmen of America and the Carpenters' Union were present in large numbers to do honor to the deceased member of their orders. The pallbearers were six members of the Woodmen, Frank Parker, John Masterson, Will Dotmore, James Harper, Robert Kramer, A. J. Miller. The remains were taken to Oak Hill for interment.

Helen Schlatter

At St. Mary's church yesterday afternoon at two thirty o'clock the last services were held for Little Helen Schlatter. Rev. Father Goebel conducted the services. The pall bearers were four cousins of the deceased, Fred Schmitt, Will Schmitt, Fred Engles, and Henry Graber. The interment was at Mount Olivet.

Fred Taylor

The late Fred Taylor was a member of Widow Son lodge, No. 25, F. and A. M., of Milwaukee. Master of the lodge, H. Palmer, was here Saturday, attending to matters connected with the funeral.

"So that is the wild animal tamer who travels with your show?"

"Yes; he's the fellow you see go in to the cages and make the wild beasts stand around."

"I noticed he must have been handled roughly lately by the scratches on his face."

"Yes; but the animals had nothing to do with that. His wife is responsible for those. He can't seem to tame her."—Yonkers Statesman.

BOWLING GROWS IN POPULARITY

TOURNAMENT GAMES PLAYED AT HOCKETT'S ALLEYS.

ALLEYS ARE BEING REDRESSED

Young Ladies Bowling Club Meets Each Week, But Is Discouraged by Heavy Balls.

Perhaps never has bowling had such a popularity as at the present time. In the West, especially, record-breaking has been right and left. In Chicago last week the 300 mark was attained, and it will probably stand as the world's record despite the fact that the same score was made on alleys at Rockford last winter. The proprietor of the Rockford alleys failed to have the measurements certified by the A. B. C. and consequently the score does not stand as official. In Janesville the alleys are enjoying a fine rush of business. The City Bowling League is playing two tournament matches a week on Hockett's alleys, and interest is running high. The King Pins leading thus far. The Badgers and All Stars play Thursday night.

Standing in League
The percentages of the teams in the City league, as they now stand are, King Pins, 1,000; Badgers, 600; All Stars, 500; Belmonts, 600.

On the same alleys the young ladies' bowling club is now meeting every Tuesday morning. The alleys are served at that time for their use and all observers are religiously excluded. Ten members are now playing in the club, and each week they divide themselves into two teams, the personnel of the opposing sides changing each week. The weight of the regulation balls rather discouraged the young ladies and they are confining their efforts to cocked hat and the other smaller ball games.

In readiness for tourney At the Y. M. C. A. alleys the list of entries for the league tourney is growing and the play will begin as soon as both alleys have been put in shape. They are undergoing a thorough re-shelling and dressing, one alley has already been completed. The same improvements are under way at the Hockett alleys. The work is necessarily slow, requiring absolute accuracy, but when both the downtown alleys, and those at the association building have been re-dressed and put in tournament shape the Janesville finger ball devotees can no longer attribute their low scores to the condition of the alleys.

ALFRED SLATER RESIGNS

Manager of The Wisconsin Telephone Company To Leave

The many friends of Alfred Slater, the efficient local manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company will regret to learn that he has severed his connection with the company, his resignation being accepted this morning. Mr. Slater says that he leaves the employ of the Wisconsin people, because they refused to give him the necessary authority to control the operators employed. He feels, as would any other manager, that when he is held responsible for the service that he should have something to say about the operators, and authority to discharge them, when in his judgment, the good of the service demanded it. The company did not agree with him along these lines, and hence he resigned. Mr. Slater has been with the Wisconsin company for ten years and during the past six years he has been in charge of the local office. His loyalty to the company has frequently been commended and the Janesville exchange has long been recognized as one of the best in the state. The company regards him as one of their best managers and it is to be regretted that friction has occurred. He will doubtless continue in the telephone business if a favorable opening presents. The Gazette voices popular sentiment in wishing him well wherever he may locate.

SEASONS' PROGRAM PLANNED

Committee Outlines The Work Of The Social Union Club

With M. P. Richardson as chairman the program committee of the Social Union club met Saturday afternoon, and arranged a program for some months to come. It is not yet given out for publication, however, as it has not been acted upon by the club, and the committee wishes the action to be taken by the organization as a body. The next meeting will be under the leadership of George S. Parker. The other members of the committee besides the chairman are A. E. Matheson, H. C. Buell and Geo. S. Parker.

DUCK SHOOTING IS PRETTY FAIR

SPORT IS QUITE PLENTY AT LAKE KOSHKONONG.

DUCKS HAVE BEGUN TO ARRIVE

Market Shooters Monopolize the Best Places—Better Sport This Season Than Last.

Duck shooting at Lake Koshkonong, while it is nothing to what it has been in years past, has been quite good for the last few days. While there has not been an immense number of canvasback at the lake at any time during the fall, most of the hunters who have devoted their time exclusively to canvasback have killed quite a few birds.

Blue Bills Arrive

During the last few days the blue bills have come into the lake in large numbers and the result has been that everyone has had more or less shooting. The market hunters have occupied the most of the choice places about the lake and have decoys located at the edge of the rushes which line the shores and run far out into the water. They lie back in the rushes and whenever anything lights in their decoys, scull out on them.

Poor Sport

This is all right for a market hunter but it shuts out the sportsman that cannot run a boat and who depends on a blind for a shot.

Taking it altogether the shooting during the present season has been very much better than it was a year ago. There have been more canvasback on the lake and many more small ducks.

CHICAGO ORGANIST WAS HERE SUNDAY

E. B. Jardine Played at the Congregational Church—Chorus Choir Gave Song Service.

Yesterday's services at the Congregational church were notable for a musical standpoint, at least, for a pleasant surprise was afforded the congregations which filled the church both morning and evening in the presence of E. B. Jardine, of Chicago, the gentleman who had charge of the building of the Jeffris and Webb memorial organs.

Mr. Jardine, who is an organist of exceptional ability, played several selections at both services and the music brought forth by his masterly touch was listened to with keen pleasure.

Last evening's service at this church was devoted to a service of song by the large chorus choir under the direction of Mrs. A. O. Wilson.

The program was an especially fine one, the choruses by the choir being "Lo, the Day of Rest Declined" by Pugeter, "And the Glory of the Lord" by Handel, "Harvest Hymn" by Hanscom and "Christ Hath Won the Victory" by Hawley. An exquisite number was Mrs. McCarthy's solo, "Ave Maria," by Mascagni, with violin and cello obligato by Oscar Halverson and F. F. Lewis and with Mrs. F. F. Lewis at the organ.

The program also included several solos and choruses. C. N. Vankirk singing the solo in "Draw Nigh to Me" by Cornel and Mrs. A. O. Wilson taking the solo part in "Hosanna" by Granier. In the selection "Celestial City," Mrs. S. B. Lewis sang the solo and the chorus was rendered by the children's choir under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Jeffris. Schubert's "The Lord is My Shepherd" quartet, sweetly sung by a ladies' quartet, consisting of Mesdames A. O. Wilson, Minnie Menzies and S. B. Lewis and Miss Franc Edwards.

WERE SURPRISED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Robinson Pleasantly Celebrate Their Wedding Anniversary.

Just forty years ago yesterday the ceremony was performed which united in marriage Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Robinson and on last Saturday evening the anniversary of that happy event was pleasantly celebrated at their home, 8 Olive street. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Robinson had anything to do with planning this celebration which was a complete surprise on them.

Twenty-five of their friends and neighbors decided that so auspicious an occasion should not be permitted to pass unnoticed and consequently they took matters into their own hands. On Saturday evening the merry company invaded the Robinson home where they received a cordial welcome, after the surprised host and hostess had sufficiently recovered their composure to extend their greetings.

The evening was spent very happily with cards and other games, one of the most enjoyable features of the evening being the elegant supper for which the guests had provided bountifully. Before good nights were said the host and hostess were each presented with a silver spoon as souvenirs of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were married at Allons Grove, Nov. 9, 1862. In the early seventies they came to this city to reside and they have many friends who join in wishing them a continuance of their happy married life and increased joy and prosperity.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED

Saturday evening at the roller rink there was an unusually large crowd, though it was one of the most orderly and select that has ever been in the rink, a great testimonial to the present management, who are doing everything possible to see that the standing of this popular place of amusement is kept up. Manager Blakely has started out right, and if he continues throughout the season as he has commenced there will be no more popular place in the city than the rink.

GAZETTE ADVERTISING PAYS

Ask the Badger Drug Company and They Will Give You Prompt Reply.

Just ask W. M. Pfennig of the Badger Drug company if Gazette advertising pays. Last Thursday this enterprising drug firm advertised exclusively in the Gazette a Saturday sale on Sandalwood toilet soap at 6 cents per cake. Three hundred and fifty-three cakes were disposed of to nearly as many different persons and all within the space of a few hours time.

"Some people were here as early as seven o'clock," said Mr. Pfennig today to a Gazette man, "in the evening we were busy handling it out to soap patrons who fully realized the good values that we offered for this one day. I am fully convinced that Gazette advertising more than pays provided the firm does just as it advertises."

TO DRIVE OUT THE LADRONES SOLDIERS TO PROTECT TOWNS

Troops Will Garrison the Larger Places While the Civil Officials Take the Field Against the Marauders in Rizal, Bulacan and Cavite.

Manila, Nov. 10.—The government contemplates asking the military to aid in the extermination of the ladrones in the provinces bordering on Manila. The plan is to have the military corporation with the civil authorities, the latter not surrendering entire control to the army.

The ladrones are active in the provinces of Rizal, Bulacan, and Cavite. They have committed many depredations, levied tribute and terrorized the people. The constabulary have been vigorously used against them without complete success, but it is believed that with the aid of the military they can be quickly exterminated.

A vigorous campaign by native volunteers that were organized in Bulacan province has driven the ladrones into Rizal province. The first joint operation will probably be in the latter province. General Davis has strengthened the garrisons in Rizal province, and will co-operate with the constabulary. A big campaign is expected.

The army will be asked to garrison and protect the largest towns, while the constabulary take the field. The further extent of the military assistance will depend on circumstances. It is possible that martial law will be proclaimed, and the writ of habeas corpus suspended in Cavite province when the campaign commences.

Ladronism has been quelled by the constabulary in many other parts of the island, including the province of Tayabas, where Rios's band has been completely broken up.

Seek Railway Rights.

The Manila and Dagupan railway has applied for a franchise to build a branch from Guigoto to Cabanatuan. The company announces that it desires to extend the line from Cabanatuan across the mountains and down the Cagayan valley to Aparri. It asks the government to give it the right of way and certain tax concessions. The Philippine commission plans to give a public hearing preparatory to drafting a railway law. It is expected Americans will seek to obtain a franchise, as the Aparri line will be an important link in the island's railway system in the future.

STREET CAR COMEDY.

Electricity Got Loose and Passengers Joined Hands and Danced and Strucked.

During a downpour of rain on a recent afternoon, says the New York Tribune, a woman of not far from 200 pounds weight entered a Madison avenue car at Fifty-ninth street, and waddled toward a broad expanse of vacancy far forward. The floor was wet from umbrella drippings, and the woman's gloves and shoes were in the same condition. As she was about to sit down she hooked the crook of her umbrella over the strap pole above to ease her descent, uttered a yell, and collapsed.

A fair-haired young man sitting next to her grabbed her hand as she went down, and immediately began a war dance, springing from his seat like a jack-in-the-box. A good-looking young woman by his side seized his damp coat, and, with a cry of "Oh, Cholly!" joined in the remarkable scene.

The conductor rushed forward and endeavored to calm the strangely excited trio. He collared the young man, and, uttering a whoop that could be heard two blocks under ordinary atmospheric conditions, joined in the wild dance.

About that time the floor and nearly everything else in the car began to sputter. The dancers sputtered louder than anything else, and there was a "swish," a curl of blue smoke, and a sudden stoppage of the car. The three passengers tumbled into the seat in a heap, the fat woman on top. The conductor waved his arms frantically, and then pulled the big woman off the heap.

"Must be water in the slot," he said, with an air of great wisdom.

FORTUNE ON BUSHES.

Truly Marvelous Phase of the Wonderful Nebraska Crops of the Present Season.

The fairy tale of money growing on bushes was realized this week along the right of way of the Burlington railroad between Hyannis and Alliance, Neb.

A gang of section men were at work when one of them noticed something that looked like a bill waving from the tangled top of a sunflower growing by the roadside. He investigated. It was a treasury note for ten dollars.

He walked a few steps further, and there, nodding from a branch of a bit of dog fennel, was another bill of similar denomination.

He called to his companions and the entire gang threw down their tools and started on a money hunt. For three hours they searched up and down the right of way and far afield.

At almost every yard their trouble was rewarded by finding either a five or ten-dollar bill. Some bills were tangled in the tops of weeds, others half hidden in bushes along the fence, and still others in the stubble of the field.

The entire day's clean-up of the eight was $2,135. When the find was reported, word came from headquarters that a money pouch containing $3,500 had been lost from an express shipment the day before.

The supposition is that the bag fell out of the open car door and was ground to pieces under the wheels and the contents were scattered to the winds. This hypothesis is supported by the later discovery of portions of the damaged pouch.

TEXAN TACTICS

Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.

The Italian counts didn't wait for Colonel Sam Taylor and his daughter Edith to strike Italian soil before seeking to win the young girl's love and the colonel's money. Edith was worth winning, and the colonel had a fat bank account from Texas cattle and the dividends of two oil gushers. He wasn't a man to brag of his wealth. He simply said to the landlord of the Parisian hotel where he "put up" for a few days:

"We want the best this shanty and this town afford, and there won't be any kicking when the bill comes in. I'm not worth as much as the Rothschilds—not at this minute—but they are expecting to strike at least three new oil wells on my land at any hour, and I may buy out your Bols before I get ready to leave."

It wasn't two days before an Italian count called. He was a count with four castles and could trace his family back 250 years without the aid of a detective.

"Look here, Count Dizzio," said Colonel Sam after looking the nobleman over; "I'm a plain, blunt man and say what I think. Did you ever run a brickyard?"

"Sir!" exclaimed the count as he drew himself up.

"Oh, no offense, you know, I'm willing to take on a son-in-law, but I want to start a big brickyard over in Texas, and he must know enough to manage it. It will be all in the family, you see. Texas has the best clay in the world for brickmaking, and the boom towns are fairly crying for material to build with."

The count made an exit becoming the descendant of a king. His tracks had not grown cold, however, when a second one arrived. His wardrobe and his ancestry went hand in hand. He had seen Edith as she entered the doorway of the hotel, and his heart beats jumped from normal to 140 per minute.

"Yes; glad you called to talk matters over," replied Colonel Sam as he leaned back in his chair. "You have seen Edith, you say, and you love her?"

"I love her as I love my life," replied the count as he worked the windmill racket with his arms.

"I see. Can't say that I'm struck on your shape, but I'm willing to give you a chance. Can you throw a lasso, brand a calf or ride a broncho?"

The count did not understand, and the colonel had to go into explanations. When he had finished and added that his ranches were all family affairs and that he would start a son-in-law in at $15 per month and gradually advance him, he found no listener to his last words.

There came other Italian counts, and they, too, disappeared after a brief talk with the colonel, but it was not until they moved on to Italy that there was a count for every hour of the twenty-four.

Counts followed the pair as they went sightseeing, met them at the doors of cathedrals and amid historic ruins and swarmed in the lobbies of hotels. It took Colonel Sam half the day and all the evening to turn them down. Some had titles only two feet long, and some had titles running into yards, but to save time and trouble he called them all Count Dizzio. He encouraged all of them to the extent of offering them various jobs ranging in wages from $30 to $45 per month and board, and in each and every case his generous offer was refused with indignation. In only one case did a Dizzio feel that the insult must be wiped out in blood.

"Signore, you have insulted me, and you must fight me one duel!" he exclaimed.

"All right, old boy; have it your way," was the good natured reply. "As I am the challenged party, I shall select revolvers, and if I don't shoot six holes through you in six seconds I'll never again claim Texas as my home."

The count declared that a gentleman could not fight with any other weapon than a rapier, but the colonel replied:

"No toasting forks or frog stickers for me. My idea is to kill you as dead and as quick as possible, and there's nothing like chunks of lead to do it. Name your time and place, friend Dizzio, and look up the deed to your lot in the graveyard at the same time."

The count retreated in good order and took revenge by declaring on all sides that Colonel Sam Taylor was no gentleman. But the last Italian count was the most determined of all. He must either marry money or open a secondhand clothing store. Colonel Sam was not the man to kick another when he was down. His daughter let the count get a crack in the back of his neck bowing to her. The idea was to let him down easy, but he refused to let her down. By some hook or crook he raised money enough to follow them back to London, and he had become such a nuisance that the colonel said:

"Look here, Mr. Dizzio, you'll have to choke off. The girl doesn't want you for a husband. You'd better run home and not bother us any more."

That evening in the ladies' parlor, which happened to be clear of other guests, Dizzio made one last appeal to Edith. When she told him it was useless to hope, he drew a stiletto and declared that they should die together.

The count was still flourishing the weapon when a hand clutched his neck, and then Colonel Sam backed him up against the wall and proceeded to take him to pieces. He removed the wig from his head, the false teeth from his jaws, the false eyebrows and the glass eye and made them up into a package with a five dollar goldpiece and said:

"Come, old man; get a move on you." And the last Italian count moved on. But the colonel leaned back and laughed.

C. B. LEWIS.

FASHIONS IN SKIRTS.

Numerous Variations to Suit Diverse Tastes.

There is quite a movement in the direction of double and over skirts. Many of the new street and house gowns are made with a drop skirt of some kind, most often of the same material as that of the rest of the dress, but sometimes the upper one is constructed of one kind and the lower skirt of entirely different stuff even to the color.

Other skirts have shaped or gathered flounces from five to ten inches deep, set high on the skirt. Three of these bring this trimming nearly to the waist line and look somewhat like so many skirts. Platted skirts are as popular as they were a year ago, and a new caprice is a skirt skirled in sections and between the skirled places, which are naturally lengthwise and about twelve inches deep, there are rows of fine braid or featherbone cording in the double cord. This is put twice or three times around, and the idea is carried out all the way to the bottom of the skirt, where the last part is left to flow free like a dounce. This kind of skirt is suitable only for a slender figure. The drop overskirt is scalloped or vandyked at the bottom, and beneath that is a skirt with several narrow ruffles. The illustration shows a dinner or house gown of white tulle as to the skirt and part of the waist and white. The tulle ruffles are bordered with very narrow rows of the silk soutache braid, and the blue portion is trimmed with white lace insertion and a narrow chiffon ruffle, with a tiny ruching of the same at the bottom. At the neck is a trimming made of lace and braid a trifle wider.

Speaking of the braid reminds me of the immense place in popular favor gained by braids. They all come under the heading of braids, but some of the styles should be called laces and almost works of art, so beautiful are they and so curiously wrought. There are all the old standard braids with which we have been familiar for a generation, but there are so many others that one is lost trying to remember them. Silk braids woven in blocks, in checks and in floral designs are all seen; also in lacelike patterns, and as these are of silk they are fine enough for the finest velvet or silk garment.

There is a new and glossy braid in many designs, and this is made of "wood silk." The silk is produced by macerating mulberry wood and treating it chemically and forcing the pulp through spinners like those of the silkworm making its cocoon. It is particularly rich in appearance and certainly makes beautiful braids of the glossiest kind. There are also many kinds of separate ornaments made of silk and mohair in the way of brooches and frogs for the waists of the suits where such trimming is indicated. Some of these have pendants in the shape of tulips, fuchsias and other flowers. The petals are of the braid gathered into the proper shape, and the stems and pistils are of the fine round cord, with tiny buttons at the ends. Until one really sees these braids the variety and beauty of them can scarcely be understood.

Disks of velvet in all sizes are also among the output of the braids, and buttons not much larger than a pinhead are made in all colors and of an incredible fineness. These are to be applied in clusters of six or seven in the form of a bunch of grapes. These have one leaf each, and are to be attached to the garment they are to trim so that the bunch of grapes hangs loose. Among the braids there are some cashmere colors wrought, like the black ones, into many fanciful designs open like lace. Plaids are also seen and some of the black ones are too handsome to call braids. Some of the braids are ten inches wide and others certainly not a sixteenth of an inch wide.

Laces for handsome home and social functions show much that is beautiful, but little that we have not seen before. The black nets with silver spangles and silver stripes are among the prettiest for evenings. Black is everything, it seems, is the choice for this winter. Black all over net or chunilly made up over white tulle or satin will be much liked for its refinement, also black and white in hats, in checks, in wool stuffs, and in the camel's hair zibeline. Many more combinations for many purposes have black and white as the fundamental idea.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

Mr. Roosevelt the Orator

Lindsay Denison in the World's Work. In Boston, late in August, he spoke before an audience in Symphony Hall. All things combined to lend inspiration. The hall itself, one of the last built of those beautiful public buildings in the construction of which Boston is leading the whole country; the audience, a gathering of people of higher average training than could have been gathered into a public meeting anywhere else in the country; the day, one which had begun in the intellectual and patriotic, if frosty clear enthusiasm of Nahant and had been continued in the rougher and less calculated approval of Lynn's public square. It was the place and time for summing up. There was no need for the preliminary step of convincing his hearers of his sincerity. The president knew that these people had known him and had approved of him long before they ever dreamed he would one day hold high office. There was no need in an atmosphere so clearly sympathetic as this of an introductory clearing away of misconceptions.

With his hands behind his back most of the time, sometimes gesturing by way of setting some one situation or one phase of his subject more clearly against another, Mr. Roosevelt talked to that great audience as though it were one man and that man representative of all that is best in people. Words came without calling or choosing. The high ability of the audience to appreciate what it was receiving had its reflected effect. There was no holding back for the duration of the oration. The higher the strain of thought, the higher the ideal the higher mounted the power of expression. The audience became tense with intellectual delight and with warmth of affection for the man who was proving himself. Time and again, in one quarter of the hall or another, the irresistible impulse to break out in cheers burst the tense strain of attention. Each time, so well was that attention concentrated on the speaker, he held it not by throwing out his hand or by breaking off to ask silence, but by the slightest motion of the head, the straightening of a finger. For forty minutes was the oration continued—forty minutes of uninterrupted eloquence. At its end there was no man in the place who dared to say to himself that Theodore Roosevelt was not an orator.

Liable to Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Miles' Nerve Gave Me New Life.

"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nerve, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and again several years ago, which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble but since using the Nerve I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a president of a large firm and at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work and now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nerve wherever I go to those who are liable to a paralytic stroke."—Rev. M. D. Myers, Building Elder, Free Methodist Church, Correctionville, Ia.

FORCE FANATICS TO BOARD TRAIN COMPEL SUBMISSION TO ORDER

Men and Women, Crazed by Religion, Are Packed Into Coaches Like So Many Cattle and Made to Return to Homes They Abandoned.

Yorkton, Manitoba, Nov. 10.—The railway special of ten coaches, which left Minnedosa Saturday night with the Doukhobors arrived here Sunday morning. The fanatics were immediately unloaded and driven to their northern villages by the mounted police. This action probably ends the most remarkable experience in Canadian history, and one of the most exciting in the history of the Northwest. At Minnedosa the fanatics were forcibly entrained, loaded in cars like cattle and guarded by a large detachment of mounted police, who were kept busy during the trip preventing the Russians from throwing themselves from the car windows.

Leader Advises Submission. The Doukhobors arrived at Minnedosa Friday night en route to Winnipeg. They attempted to resume the journey Saturday with the mercury standing at 10 below zero. Government officials held them with difficulty in the by road until the military special train arrived with 500 mounted police. The fanatics were addressed by the officials and told they would have to go home.

They cried: "No; we go to seek Jesus."

Zilboff, their leader, harangued his followers, instructing them not to resist.

Difficult Work. Two hundred farmers who gathered at the train to see them and 500 other citizens surrounded them and offered assistance to the police. Fifty of the fanatics got out and made a rush on the road to go east. Surrounded by the crowd, they resisted desperately and the police grappled with the leaders and carried them bodily to the cars.

Zilboff had to be taken to the cars, 500 yards from the rink to the wagon, and when the rink vomited forth the fanatics an indescribable scene followed. Farmers, townspeople, and police threw themselves on the Doukhobors and dragged or carried them to the station. The later encircled each other with their arms and seemed linked together as by bands of steel. While they struggled they gave voice to their weird chant.

Like Football Match. Some struggled so hard that their clothing was literally torn from their backs. For over an hour the ground to the station was filled with seething crowds and excitement was intense, like as though 100 fierce football scrimmages were going on at one time.

The Doukhobors refused to strike but struggled blindly for freedom. Their captors, with blood warmed to hot heat by the strange struggle, shouted and cursed as the bloodless battle became more exciting.

Few Escape. At the cars stalwart police handed up the kicking Russians, who were thrust into dark, cold coaches like cattle, and the foreigners threw themselves against windows and doors, barred to prevent their escape, and confusion followed. During the enforced entraining of the men a small blizzard sprang up and the weather became intensely cold.

The Doukhobors have been living on wheat and raw oatmeal. Small quantities of bran were thrown to them. Many are wrecks, but all protest they will continue their search for the Messiah.

Only about twenty out of 500 escaped, and they are out on the prairie in a temperature that means death to them.

BURGLARS SHOOT CITY DETECTIVE

FOLLOWS DESPITE HIS WOUND

With Bullet Lodged in His Head the Policeman Trails His Assailants Until Aid Comes to Him—Man-Hunters Capture Two.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—In a pistol duel at short range in the middle of the road at Indiana and Clark streets, Detective William Rohan, son of Lieutenant of Detectives Andrew Rohan, was shot through the head by one of four men who he was seeking to place under arrest at 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Although blinded by his wound and faint from the loss of blood, the officer pursued his assailants for a block, firing as he ran. Help came to him and two of the fugitives were captured after a half hour's chase.

Frank Murphy is the prisoner whom Rohan identifies as the man who shot him, and he was also partly identified as the murderer of Charles E. Bohlen, a real estate dealer, living at 239 South Paulina street, who, on the night before election, was shot by robbers in a raid on Benjamin Maraviglia's saloon, 724 West Harrison street. William, alias "Stubby" Loftus, is the other man arrested, and he is suspected of having had a part in the series of street robberies early Saturday morning at Lake street and Fifth avenue.

Recognizes Three Men.

Rohan, who in his two years' connection with the police force has made an enviable reputation as a thief catcher, came upon four men in the shadow of LaSalle avenue, near Erie street, at 4 o'clock. He says he recognized three of them as William Loftus, William Cahill and Michael Walsh, well known to him. The fourth man he did not recognize, but deciding that the quartet was bent on some evil, he started to follow.

As the men were sing Indiana street, in Clark, he overtook them and laid his hand on Cahill's arm. The latter dropped a small parcel he was carrying, and a sharp struggle ensued. Rohan was almost a match for his four opponents, and was beating Cahill, on whom he kept a firm hold, when one of the others, declared to have been Murphy, stepped back and leveled his revolver.

Pistol Duel.

Rowan drew his own weapon, but Murphy fired on the instant. The ball went wild, and then he and the policeman, standing not three feet apart, used each other for targets. Murphy's third shot struck Rohan in the right side of the face, below the temple, and ranged downward through his head until it lodged back of the nose and over the roof of his mouth. All four of the men turned as the officer staggered back and ran west in Indiana street.

Rohan was blinded from the shock of the wound he received, but he heard his antagonists running and followed them with uncertain steps. Three times he clutched at a railing and fired in their direction, but his bullets did no harm. At LaSalle avenue he stumbled and fell, and just then Detective Berwick, attracted by the shooting, ran up. He saw the fugitives disappearing in Indiana street and took up the pursuit.

Two Under Arrest.

A number of shots were exchanged, but Berwick kept in the wake of Murphy, and followed him by devious ways for half a mile, the chase leading back to within a few yards of the scene of the shooting, and there he overtook and captured him.

Loftus was arrested an hour later by Policemen Abbey and Mullen, and he and Murphy were taken before Rohan, who was being cared for at the Passavant hospital. The wounded officer unhesitatingly identified both men, and indicated Murphy as the one who did the shooting. In the latter's possession there was found a recently discharged revolver, freshly loaded.

Lieut. Rohan, whose headquarters are at the city hall, was advised of his son's injury and hurried to the Chicago avenue station, where he joined the force of policemen who spent the day in unavailing search for Cahill and Walsh.

Detective May Survive.

The lieutenant learned from the hospital surgeons that there was little danger of his son succumbing to his wound unless unexpected complications should arise. The injured officer is 27 years old and married.

Murphy claims to have come recently from St. Louis, and it is thought he has been concerned in several of the late street robberies. Lieut. Rohan learned of his supposed connection with the murder of Charles Bohlen, and Saloonkeeper Maraviglia was summoned. He said the prisoner greatly resembled one of the bandits who raided his place, but he could not be positive until he had seen the suspect by daylight.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT.

Plan to Interest the Government in the Matter.

The effort to form a union of all organizations that have for their object the beautifying of towns and cities which will be made in connection with the convention of the American Park and Outdoor Association in Buffalo next year will be widely approved, says the Buffalo Express. Most of the large cities and many towns and villages have such associations and would gladly join in the proposed movement.

One of the objects of forming a union is to interest the government in the work and get its support to the extent of collecting and making public information on the subject, with photographs, etc., showing what can be done by organized effort. The government's work would presumably be largely to show what has been done in foreign towns and cities. The individual organizations have accomplished much as it is, but there is a limitless field in which to work, and government aid would be valuable.

Every city in the country, and many towns are, for example, filled with unsightly billboards and display advertising in the form of immense paintings on buildings, etc. The improvement societies have given their attention to this matter for a long time, with considerable success. The courts in several states have upheld the right of a city to regulate the size of billboards, and there is every reason for believing that in the not distant future billboards will have disappeared from towns and cities.

The care and planting of trees and shrubs, straightening the sidewalk lines, removal of sidewalk and lot fences and the beautifying of back yards are a few of the other changes which should be made in towns and cities. The question of architecture is another important point. There is plenty of work to be done in improvement, and any movement such as the proposed union of the separate societies, which promises to help the cause should be heartily supported.

VILLAGE ATTRACTIONS.

Something Needed to Offset Use of Modern Conveniences.

Telephones, rural mail routes, interurban and trolley lines have had the effect, it is said, of making small towns and villages more quiet than formerly, says the Indianapolis Journal. Now that the farm telephone has come into use, its owner does not "hitch up" and go to the village as formerly to do his errands. He telephones to the storekeeper his order for goods and asks him to send them out by trolley or by the first man traveling that way; he consults the doctor over the telephone and talks with his friends in the village in the same way.

The mail is brought to his gate and thus relieves him of the necessity of a daily trip. His relations with the blacksmith remain unchanged, for no way has been yet devised whereby that useful personage can shoe a horse or mend a wagon without having horse and vehicle present, but these needs are not of daily occurrence, and so it happens that the little street or open square which was wont to seem almost crowded with horses and vehicles at certain hours every day or on certain days in the week now often wears a deserted look, and the residents are conscious of a sense of loneliness.

They say, too, that when once a man gets on a trolley car with intent to make a purchase he goes to a larger town and that this is particularly true of his wife or daughter on a similar errand. All this is a natural but rather curious development following the extended use of modern conveniences, and what remedy the village has is not plain. Its only hope is apparently to establish attractions of a social or educational nature that will offset the loss in other directions and will draw its rural neighbors there for amusement and entertainment.

LESSON IN AMERICAN HISTORY IN PUZZLE

THE VISIT OF SAMOSET.
First Massachusetts, Samoset's Chief.

Knowing something of the experiences of other settlers in America the Pilgrims at Plymouth were in great dread of the Indians. Their delight can be appreciated when one day in the spring following their landing, an Indian stepped from the woods and said in good English: "Welcome, Englishmen! Welcome!" It was Samoset, of the Wampanoag tribe, who had learned a few words of English from some fishermen on the Maine coast. He was treated with the utmost kindness, and returned a few days later bringing with him Massasoit, chief of his tribe, who made a treaty of peace with the settlers.
